NOVEL CASE.—The superintendent of freedmen's affairs for Loudoun county, Va., writes to General Fullerton that some time in the year 1860 John Dorsey, a free negro, purchased of Thomas Sanders a girl aged ten years, a slave of the said Sanders, and Dorsey's daughter. Dorsey gave in payment a note for the amount of $550, one Amos Hughes, a Quaker resident of the county, and Dorsey's employer, becoming security. The agreement was that the money should be paid as fast as earned by Dorsey. In this way a number of payments were made to the holder of the note, amounting in the aggregate to $350. In 1864 Mr. Hughes, the endorser of the note, offered to pay the balance in Virginia currency, which was refused by the holder, who is now pressing its payment. The endorser is desirous to avoid litigation by paying the money, but the superintendent has directed him not to do so until a decision has been given by Gen. Howard.—Nat. Int.

Some literary Bohemian having lately published what he calls a Life of Colonel Mosby, the latter states as follows: "The life of me, advertised by somebody in Urbana, Ohio, is a pure fiction: the author has neither my countenance or sanction; whatever he has written must of necessity be a mere romance concocted for sensation purposes and to put money in some impostor's pocket. Major John Scott has in his possession, and will publish during the spring, an authentic history of our command, from the time when I first crossed the Rappahannock, a youth to fortune and to fame unknown, in command of fifteen men, to the day of our disbandment."

The old homestead of Gen. John Coffee, the "right arm" of General Jackson, was destroyed by fire on Monday night, the 4th instant. It was situated three miles north of Florence, Alabama, and was, at the time of its destruction, occupied by the widow of General Coffee, now past seventy-three years old. The loss of the house and furniture is estimated at $30,000. Among the interesting historical relics destroyed in the conflagration was a sword, presented to General Jackson by the citizens of New Orleans, and bequeathed by him to Col. Andrew J. Coffee.

Governor Cox, of Ohio, and late a major general in the army, takes the ground, in his inaugural address just delivered, "that the war having settled in the negative, beyond dispute, the question whether one or more States have the right to dissolve the Union, it is absurd to again raise it and put it in jeopardy by subjecting it to the test of trial by jury of any of the leading rebels."

Fenian general court-martial yesterday rendered a verdict against the Senate. The sentence has yet to be pronounced by O'Mahony. From the report of the committee on finance it appears there are but $30,000 in the treasury. The receipts from October to January 6th were $147,000, of which all but the above was expended.

PUBLIC SALE OF VALUABLE LAND.

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of Fauquier county, pronounced the 12th day of December, 1865, in the suit of Hunton vs. Bastable, the undersigned, who were therein appointed special Commissioners for that purpose, will, on FRIDAY, 9th of February, 1866, offer for sale, on the premises, at public auction, to the highest bidder, a TRACT OF LAND, belonging to G. M. Bastable, in the county of Fauquier, and is the same land allotted to said Bastable, in the partition between him and James J. Hunton, and contains by recent survey 866 1-2 ACRES. This is one of the very finest farms in Piedmont, Virginia; is well adapted to the growth of all cereals, and is unsurpassed as a Grazing Farm. It is beautifully situated on both sides of Cedar Run, and is composed entirely of the first and second bottoms of that stream. It lies within half mile of the Warrenton Junction, on the O. & A. R. R. It has upon it a very VALUABLE MILL, fitted for grinding corn, and which might, with a small outlay, be made one of the finest flouring mills in the county; also, a first-rate SAW MILL, in good repair. The DWELLING HOUSE is comfortable, but small. James J. Hunton, esq., who lives on the premises, will take pleasure in showing it to persons desirous to purchase. It is believed that no opportunity for a good investment, equal to this, has for a long time, been offered to the public.

Terms of Sale:—One-fourth of the purchase money will be required in cash on the day of sale. The balance in one, two, and three equal annual instalments, to bear interest from the day of sale. The title to the land will be withheld as a security for deferred payments, and the land will be resold by order of Court, upon failure to pay any one of deferred payments.
